PROFILE

I lead a university diversity unit with a master's degree and fifteen years of experience in Gender, Women's & Sexuality Studies and intimate partner violence and sexual assault prevention and education. My background in equity, social justice, and intersectionality lends to my solid understanding of inequitible structures and power relations. I use this understanding to build robust relationships across difference among students, colleagues, and community stakeholders. I am committed to student development and collective growth for any institution I am part of.
