

Thinking of Studying Abroad?

Willamette University Office of International Education

Here's what you should know!

Your "Why"

Think about your motivation for studying abroad and what you would like to get out of it.

Pros & Cons

Make a list and think about if it is the right time for you, your schedule, and your capacity. How might this fit with your goals?

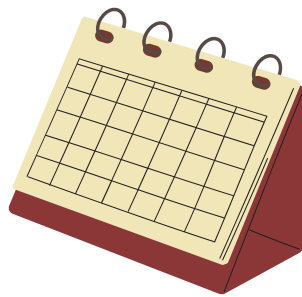

Is it language? Independence?
Cultural knowledge?

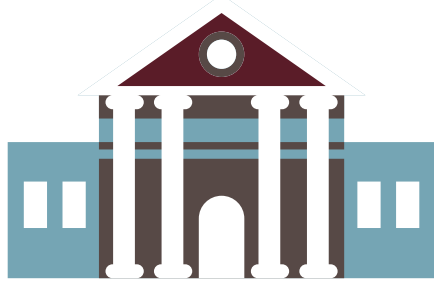

Direct enrollment immerses students directly in the host university, while hybrid programs offers a blend of program-specific courses with other courses offered from the partner university.

Opportunities

Know that we have semester, full year and summer programs. They provide varying opportunities for support or independence.

Summer programs are faculty-led, range from 3-8 weeks, and have an academic theme or focus.

Cost & Credit

Semester and year programs have costs very similar to living on-campus.

Summer programs have a set cost each year based on a minimum number of participants.

Semester, year, and summer programs vary in cost.

Credit earned on WU programs is considered Willamette credit.

Deadlines

Know when the deadline is to apply. Give yourself time to contact your recommenders!

Prepare

Keep your grades up, get to know your professors (you'll need a recommendation!), explore our programs, talk to your academic advisor, and think about WHY!
